Troop Scrapbook

Girl Scouts in Troop 2855 spent a day volunteering with One Generation Away and helped distribute food to more than 300 families in need.

Troop 1332 visited a new mural to meet with a local official, learn about Tennessee's role in ratifying the 19th Amendment, and work on the Inside Government Badge.

Troop 354 celebrated Halloween by taking a trip to Oaklands Mansion for a history lesson and spooky flashlight walk through the mansion and grounds.

Girl Scouts had a blast at our Teen Adventure Day at Camp Sycamore Hills! They finished off the day with a Halloween costume party.

Girl Scout Daisy Anaiya from Troop 359 helped volunteer at a Voter Registration Drive.

For troop leaders who are thinking about going virtual for their meetings, what are your best tips for getting started?

Normally, I try to let the girls have some input on which badges we work on, but I had to look at the badges that would work well virtually or independently. Finding the "My Best Self" or "Cooking" badges were great options because those are the kinds of things that the girls could be doing at home with their families as well. I still let my girls vote on which badges they would like to do, but I narrowed the field to some badges that would work well at home first.

Another thing that has helped me is preparing to give a little more instruction for some of the activities ahead of time. Some things take a little more explaining or instruction via a computer, so I try to figure out which activities I can lead well virtually and stick with those.

For activities, how do you make sure everyone has the right materials?

Our troops are pretty close and many of the girls live in or around the same neighborhoods, so I drop off the supplies for the girls ahead of time. Now that some of them are in school again, that also makes it easier to meet up with some of the parents and drop off supplies there too.

Now let's talk about your troop that's meeting in-person. What steps do you take to ensure that everyone feels comfortable meeting in person?

When we initially met to form this Daisy troop, we set expectations for meetings. We decided ahead of time that we wouldn't bring a child to an in-person meeting if they were feeling sick at all. We also meet outside, everyone wears masks, and we bring plenty of hand sanitizer.

To help keep everyone distanced, we sit in a circle. It's a small group, so this works really well for us! I measured some different colored ribbons that are 6 feet long, and I place them between each girl in the circle. We also use hula hoops, so every girl has her own little space in the circle. We still do other activities like going for walks, outdoor art, etc., but everyone keeps their masks on and we still try to keep some distance.

Where do you meet?

We meet at a church lawn (which used to be our old inside meeting spot), we meet in parks, and when available, we try to reserve the pavilions at the parks to use. One challenge with meeting outside is that we have to pay extra attention to the weather beforehand and be flexible with meeting times.

What is your advice to troop leaders who are trying to decide how to meet?

Have those initial meetings with the parents or send out surveys to them to get everyone's input on their comfort levels. Although you can't always accommodate everyone, deciding should still be a troop decision.

Another piece of advice is not to try to do it all on your own! Utilize resources like virtual field trips or organized activities with different organizations like museums or science centers, bring in guest speakers, or involve other parents in the troop with meetings. Find others to help and resources that would be fun for your troop!

Thank you to Mary Ward for sharing your experience with leading both in-person and virtual troop meetings!

There's a reason the Girl Scout Cookie Program® is a celebrated tradition. It's an amazing opportunity for girls to grow as a team and build lifelong skills!

The largest girl-led entrepreneurial program in the world also offers an incredible opportunity for volunteers to see firsthand how girls grow, learn, and come into their own. We provide the resources you can use to guide girls in discovering talents, new strengths, and developing the entrepreneurial mindset that will serve them far beyond cookie season. We can do this together... We've got this!

Hear from our VOLUNTEER TRAINERS

I love to attend Girl Scout training courses because I learn so much from the instructors and other attendees. However, since becoming a Volunteer Trainer, I found I continue to learn from everyone who attends the courses I facilitate. We have so many great volunteers and girls with great ideas and experiences. The class attendees boost my energy, enthusiasm, and knowledge.

Diane Honda • Volunteer Trainer

While we may not look like an average scouting family, we enjoy the choices that Girl Scouting brings. Anytime you might find us: selling cookies at a booth or door-to-door; going to Disney on Ice, the Circus, or TPAC to see Wicked; sleeping on the Sounds baseball field; visiting the Girl Scouts home and First Headquarters in Savannah, GA; camping; crafting; dancing; baking; canoeing; learning life skills; staring at the stars; helping our community; and most recently earning and saving for our trip to Europe.

Selling cookies and camping are my specialties. I enjoy teaching adults organization, management, and outdoor camp skills. However, I most often teach Red Cross CPR/AED/First Aid. I teach Red Cross almost solely. I do this for ONE reason only: without a First Aider – the Troops cannot meet to have field trips or ANY of the experiences I listed above. At the end of each class, as the students leave one by one, I ask them to please take their girls somewhere special – somewhere they would not usually get to go. Knowing that these adults are now Red Cross certified gives those little ladies the opportunity to go and experience outside their usual and familiar places to learn and grow. And THAT is what builds girls with courage, confidence, and character and helps make the world a better place!
